One of the goals of field experience is to develop a student's ability to demonstrate appropriate professional behavior. Through purposeful interactions at the field site, U of P students are expected to engage individuals, affirm the dignity and worth of all individuals and demonstrate a belief in all individuals' ability to learn. In their work, students are expected to collaborate effectively with site personnel, communicate constructively, and act in accordance with site policies and practices. Your assessment of the degree to which this student is meeting these expectations at your site provides valuable information that is used to support this student's further professional growth.
